

Thirteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

June 30, 2019

First Reading: I Kings 19:16b, 19-21; Psalm 16:1-2, 5, 7-11;
Second Reading: Galatians 5:1, 13-18; Gospel: Luke 9:51-62

“I will follow you wherever you go.”

This Sunday in Luke’s Gospel, Jesus reminds us of the urgency of following him to Jerusalem—the place of his passion, death and resurrection. For this reason he tells us that nothing should get in our way. In his words, “no one who sets a hand to the plow and looks to what was left behind is fit for the kingdom of God.” All of our readings make it clear that discipleship and following Jesus must direct our lives. His mission and way of life should be ours. Remaining faithful to the will of the Father and our eternal homeland is truly our “inheritance,” as Psalm 16 reminds us. Even burying the dead should not get in our way.

The kingdom of God is a gift that we receive and live as followers of Jesus. The Father’s love for all of his children—and his preferential option for the poor—should guide our lives and through us transform history. As Paul tells us, “the whole law is fulfilled in one statement, namely, You shall love your neighbor as yourself.”
